Scope and content

The records of the technical materials series contain prompt books, light plots, ground plans, costume plots, set designs, electrics, prop running sheets, prop preset sheets, prop inventories, light cue sheets, and electrical layouts. Administrative materials are included such as scheduling (cast calls), budget information, the buying and production of props, production meeting notes and minutes, rehearsal log and show report. Oversized materials such as light plots and ground plans were removed to the Oversized Materials series.

The records reflect all physical aspects of the staging of a production. These materials should allow a researcher to properly reproduce a director's interpretation. The central functional item for each production in this series is the prompt book. The prompt book contains light cues, sound cues, and stage directions. Changes in script or a player's actions are written in the margins of a page or added as attachments to the script. A play that requires a lot of movement or contains a large cast will usually have a separate blocking script. A musical with dancing or fight sequences may have several annotated scripts to complete the director's vision of the production. Other materials most often found represent the purely technical aspects of a production, such as lighting plots, costume plot, property information, ground plans, electrics and set designs. Related documents include prop running sheets, prop preset sheets, prop inventory, light cue sheets, and electrical layouts.
